

With no contract

Teachers return to work

By JIM CARAVALLAH
Of The Roman Staff

Classes began as normal today in the Romulus School District after teachers in the district agreed to return to work without a new contract.

Both sides in the negotiations of a new teacher contract have requested the help of a state mediator in an effort to solve the differences in negotiation of a new contract.

James Garfield, superintendent of schools in Romulus, described negotiations as "amicable" after 48-hours of intensive bargaining during the Labor Day weekend.

"Both sides stuck to the table in an effort to settle the differences."

Garfield said. "But we're still a long way apart."

The teachers voted to go back to work under the 2-year contract which expired last month to give the bargaining teams for both sides more time to iron out their differences.

Peg Ross, president of the Romulus Education Association described the decision by the teachers, made in an early-morning meeting yesterday, as "a vote of confidence for the negotiation team."

"It was pretty short," Mrs. Ross said of the meeting at the Romulus Progressive Hall. "The members are agreeable to go back to work."

Chris Powers, chief negotiator for the teachers, said: "We're going to stick with bargaining in an effort to resolve the differences.

"We simply ran out of time. The teachers would like to be back to the table by Thursday, if possible."

Garfield summed up the request for a mediator as "an honest admission we aren't able to solve the differences among ourselves."

Although he would not give specific figures, Garfield described the impasse to settlement as "monetary" and said there was a "substantial amount, no matter how you look at it" separating both sides.

The superintendent said he too hopes to have a mediator on hand within 48-hours to settle the differences, but added that the speed with which both sides get back to bargaining "depends on the availability of the mediator."

Garfield said the district was willing "to use all the resources available" to settle the differences.

Clerk readies for Monday election

By JIM CARAVALLAH
Of The Roman Staff

Although he won't be undergoing the test of the ballot box Monday, Romulus' city clerk will be undergoing another of the ongoing tests he has had to pass during his 4½-year term in office.

Monday's primary balloting will prove again whether Folmar's work and his staff's work was complete, and whether balloting for the more than 13,000 registered voters in Romulus will go smoothly.

Voters will go to the polls Sept. 8 to limit the field of candidates who will seek election on the general election ballot in November.

Seeking the two mayoral spots are incumbent Mayor Terry L. Troutt and hopefuls Glenn Free, Clayton W. Meldrum and James C. Stewart.

Seeking one of 14 council spots on the general election ballot are incumbent Councilman Fred Junior Block, Lngg Coleman, Joan A. Lee, Beverly McAnally, William M. Oakley and Jack H. Trumble. They are being challenged by Robert Abbey, Gervazio Canejo, Jeffery Dahlstrom, Charles R. Dick Jr., Charlie Harris, Kenneth R. Howington, Joseph R. Kochanoski, Jon W. Madish, Robert H. Martin, Jimmie C. Raspberry and Oliver Warren.

The names of treasurer hopeful Franklin Ayers and current treasurer John B. Lewkowicz will not be on the ballot, since they were the only two candidates to file for the treasurer's post. Neither will the lone candidate for clerk, Folmar, be on the primary ballot.

Polling will begin at 7 a.m. and continue until 8 p.m. Monday.

"The key to the success of any election is good workers," Folmar said on the eve of the Romulus primary balloting. "I'm lucky not only to have an excellent and dedicated office staff, but a good crew of experienced election workers who know how to get the job done."

A sign of that experience came during the August special millage election when workers had tallies complete by 8:30 p.m. — just one-half hour after the polls closed.

"In other communities, the final vote counts may not have come in until an hour or more after the voting was completed," Folmar added. "These workers did their job."

The clerk attributes the workers' ability to handle the tallying and policing chores at the polls efficiently to some of his own preparation.

"You never quit working on some election," Folmar said. "Once an election is completed, you begin on the next one, registering, rounding up workers, preparing machines, mailing notices and all the rest."

"That may be why no one filed for office," he said with a laugh. "We're always busy."

A sign of the office's determination to remain up to date is the addition of one full time employee assigned the task of keeping voter registration rolls up to date, and ready for use in each election.

The rolls are the key to balloting, since their numbers are used to determine how many precincts to form, how many machines to use and how many absentee ballots to order for each election.

"We've had some success in ordering the election so far, and I think it will continue," Folmar said. "All I have to do is keep the same core of experience, and rely on those people."

Election issue forum

13 tell why support sought

Candidates for office in the Romulus primary election were asked to sum up the two reasons voters should elect them as the last in The Romulus Roman's "issues forum" prior to the Sept. 8 primary election.

Thirteen of the 21 candidates who will be on the ballot answered the questions.

Robert Abbey, a hopeful for City Council, said that voters should put him on the general election ballot because of his determination to "hold the line on taxes" and to "strive for realistic zoning within our city."

Abbey added that he would hold taxes down by "exploration and development of any and all possible sources of funds available to our city" and to work for better zoning by working for a "master zoning plan" without depriving residents of the use of their land.

Incumbent candidate Fred Junior Block said voters should return him to office because of his determination to promote business and industrial expansion and to seek "proper and balanced zoning" between those interests.

Block wrote that his experience allows him to meet the two priorities he mentioned.

Candidate Gervazio Canejo believes the reason voters should place him in office is because of his "long history of personal involvement in the city" and his "commitment to be a full-time elected official" who will be available to the citizens "when they need me."

EDITOR'S NOTE: In our effort to provide the best possible coverage of the city election, The Romulus Roman has introduced an issue forum. This is the last forum before the primary election on Monday. Because of the primary, the forum will be discontinued for one week (in the Sept. 10 issue) and continued in the Sept. 17 issue of The Romulus Roman. Candidates should watch next Wednesday's newspaper to see who should come in for a question in the forum. Also, as a service to our readers, The Roman has asked candidates to submit photographs for themselves. Those photographs are being included in today's issue on this page and Page 3. One candidate, Charles R. Dick Jr., thought The Roman had a photograph of him in our files and did not submit one of himself. We were unable to find that snapshot, though. The issue forum is being prepared in this handy clip-out format. We urge readers to clip it out and save it for re-reading before going to the polls.

Council hopeful Jeffery C. Dahlstrom said he should be placed in office because his recent involvement in politics "will offer a change, a new approach" to solving the city's problems and because he will not be a "rubber stamp" for a program "just because one person says it's right."

Charles J. Dick Jr., another hopeful, said voters should elect him because receiving a degree from college in business allows him to "understand most the matters that the council has to handle" and because of his interest in school, government and recreational committees which has "awakened in me a desire to be of more service."

Kenneth R. Howington, another council hopeful, said he should be elected because: "I am open-minded and an individual thinker who cannot be pressured into making decisions that will not benefit all the people in our city."

Joseph R. Kochanoski, council hopeful, said the two reasons voters should put him in office are because his 25-years of residence in the community makes him aware of the shortcomings of past and present administrations and also aware of the needs of the community. In addition, he said voters should vote him in office because "I would study very closely any proposals brought before council" to "see that our hard-earned tax dollars are spent wisely."

Incumbent Council President Pro Tem Joan A. Lee said she should be placed back in office because: "I sincerely believe that government exists for the needs of the people and should respond to those needs."

And another reason is because of her interest in improving the city's image through clean-up campaigns and the city's Beautification Committee to see that the city grows "into a clean, wholesome environment," she wrote.

Beverly McAnally, incumbent Mayor Pro Tem, said she should be placed back into office because her years of community service shows "I possess fundamental philosophies, character and determination to pursue those goals that provide the greatest opportunities, securities and comforts to all our people" and because she has "dealt with problems 'honestly and directly to protect individual rights while pursuing a course to provide the greatest general benefit.'"

Council hopeful Jon W. Madish said he should be returned to office because "my goal is to help make Romulus the best place to live in Wayne County" and because his involvement in clubs and civic groups show his interest in the community.

Robert Martin, another council hopeful, said he should be placed in office because he advocates civil service exams "rather than awarding jobs to friends" and because he "wants 'full-service officials who serve in other ways than just the job to which they were elected.'"

Martin wrote that his independent status gives him a chance to "better represent the people all the time."

Incumbent Councilman William M. Oakley said voters should place him in office again "because of my past expressions of honesty while serving on the City Council and my business experience" which "gives me the type of knowledge that is most valuable in dealing with the legislative process of our city."

Incumbent Councilman Jack H. Trumble said he should be re-elected "because of my past record as a councilman voting on progressive issues" and because he feels "a team candidate has better opportunity to work effectively to make better government."

Offered the same chance to detail the reasons voters should put them in office, but not answering were, mayoral hopefuls Glenn Free, Clayton W. Meldrum, James C. Stewart and incumbent Mayor Terry L. Troutt.

Also not answering the question were council candidates incumbent Lngg Coleman, hopeful Charlie Harris, hopeful Jimmie C. Raspberry and hopeful Oliver Warren.

'But it hurts!'

Three-year-old Tracy Farkas of Romulus is learning that at times things which are really good for you hurt. The Romulus Roman Chief Photographer Lothar E. Konietzko caught Tracy with tears in her eyes as the preschooler received immunization shots as part of the Wayne County Health Department's continuing disease immunization program. Participation in the program can help root out such past child-killers as polio, diphtheria and small pox.

Adults learn; Gain degrees

There's more to Romulus' Community Education Program than earning degrees, according to Bill Smith, director.

"We feel that it's important to learn, for learning's sake," Smith said.

And since the program began a few years ago with only a few programs, and few participants, it has grown 10 times, showing the residents of Romulus may agree.

"We had seven graduates after the first year of the program," Smith said. "And last year there were 75."

At first the major selling point of continuing education was degree oriented, with adults being urged to earn the college credits they missed in their school years.

"A recent survey showed that 42 percent of the people in the United States haven't completed high school," Smith said. "Our first objective was to remove their natural fear or returning to school and to urge them to complete."

"But what do you do for the adult who has a good job, and doesn't really want a high school degree? The answer, in Smith's opinion, is to urge him to seek knowledge."

"Our philosophy is that there is a need to learn," Smith said. "If you get a diploma or equivalency certificate on the side, fine."

"But we stick to the idea that we have to impart academic experience to those who desire it."

At present, more than 2,000 people, including 75 youngsters in the community education Head Start Program are gaining that experience, be it regular curriculum offerings of English, history or math, or hobby programs designed to teach persons means to handle free time.

District posts special ed plans

The Michigan Department of Education said four intermediate school districts have filed special education plans for the 1975-76 school year that meet all state requirements.

The four intermediate districts include two of the largest — Wayne and Macomb — which will enroll more than one-third of all the handicapped students who will participate in special education programs next year.

The other two districts are Bay-Arenac and St. Joseph.

The Department said special education plans for all four intermediate school districts were received prior to the legally prescribed deadline for submission, but they were not submitted to the State Board of Education for final approval at its Aug. 12-13 meeting because its staff did not have time to review them because of their complexity and magnitude.

At its Aug. 12-13 meeting, the State Board gave final approval to special education plans of 46 of Michigan's 58 intermediate school districts.

The department said the plans submitted by Bay-Arenac, St. Joseph, Macomb and Wayne intermediate school districts all meet the criteria of the Mandatory Special Education Act and consequently will be recommended for final approval by the state board.

In the meantime, the four districts are authorized to proceed with implementing their plans when school starts next month.

An estimated 50,000 handicapped students will participate in special education programs in the Wayne County Intermediate District and between 30,000 and 35,000 students will be enrolled in special education programs in the Macomb Intermediate School District. Statewide, an estimated 225,000 handicapped children throughout Michigan will receive special education services during the 1975-76 school year.

Day by Day In Romulus

Area deaths

Mary D. McLaughlin, 77, of Belleville, died Aug. 29, Roberts Bros. Funeral Home, Belleville.

Emil Peceny, 73, formerly of Belleville, died Aug. 26, Roberts Bros. Funeral Home, Belleville.

Becky Johnson, 25, of Belleville, died Aug. 30, Baum Funeral Home, Romulus.

Area meetings

The Romulus Board of Education will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the school board offices, 36540 Grant Road, Romulus.

The Romulus City Council will meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the City Council Chambers of the Romulus City Hall, 11111 S. Wayne Road, Romulus.

Officials invite others to meet

Romulus officials are inviting those from surrounding communities who may be affected by overflight traffic from Detroit Metropolitan Airport to attend a meeting with an attorney who may be able to ease some of the problems caused by those overflights.

The officials of Romulus and the Romulus School District will be meeting with Jerrold Fadern at 3 p.m. tomorrow to discuss a possible class action suit designed to help alleviate some of the air and noise pollution problems caused by large airliners coming into and out of the airport.

Officials of Taylor, Inkster, Westland, Van Buren Township and Huron Township have been invited to attend the meeting to discuss the possibility of joining the suit.

"It's not just Romulus which suffers with the problem," said Romulus Mayor Terry L. Troutt. "So we should invite officials of all communities involved to help work out a solution."

Romulus residents will have the greatest chance to make their opinions of the airport heard when an open meeting on the airport with Fadern is called at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Romulus High School Auditorium.

Troutt has said in the past that he is hoping to round up support for a suit not only to alleviate resident's problems with the airport, but also to help in a fight for more than $8.5 million in revenue and equipment losses suffered by the city due to airport expansion.

"It's the citizens' money which was lost when water and sewer lines were absorbed by the airport, and the citizens who should be repaid," Troutt said. "This is one means, I think, to win some justice for them."

Election job loss irks lady

A Romulus woman has contacted the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) to find if she has a case against the Romulus Elections Commission after she wasn't hired to work the city's Sept. 8 primary election.

Rose Silvey, a veteran of more than 17 years of election work, said she has contacted the civil rights advocates to determine if she is entitled to some legal appeal of her removal from the city's election force during a 17-person cutback of that force after she claims she was unofficially accused of campaigning against two city bond issues while on the job during last month's special election.

"It isn't the job, but the principle of being accused and dismissed without a hearing," Mrs. Silvey told The Romulus Roman Friday. "I was informed that I was left off the city election because I was accused of campaigning during the last election, and wasn't even told who my accusers were. It's a question of my integrity now."

The veteran election worker contends, however, that she could not have campaigned during the election because she was cloistered in the Romulus

City Council Chambers between 4 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. during the August special election with two other workers "and there weren't even any windows in the room where I could have talked to anyone during the counting."

Mrs. Silvey had spoken out against the two $14.1 million bond issues in a story carried by The Romulus Roman prior to the election. She was present at a meeting of residents in the Huron Estates Subdivision which a Roman reporter attended.

But she claims she was at the meeting by mistake, having decided to visit a friend and learning only after she got there that the reporter was coming.

"I didn't think anything of it then," she said. "But I was warned by a city official after the story was printed that I should keep my opinions to myself, since I'm an employee of the city during elections."

That official was Romulus City Clerk Leonard Folmar, who said that he walked by Mrs. Silvey and urged her to use better judgement in making public statements, since she was a regular election worker and statements made by her could reflect on the integrity of the election.

More than 30 other persons, including 16 other veterans, also were not hired for the primary election.

According to Deputy Clerk Theresa Bryant, who oversees the mechanics of each election, the removal of a worker from each precinct saves $40 in election costs in that precinct, and the removal of a chairman saves $50.

District to screen youngsters

Preschool youngsters who may have speech problems have an opportunity get those problems diagnosed through the Romulus School District.

The Romulus Speech Therapy Department will begin screening youngsters with suspected speech and language problems Sept. 10 and will continue until Sept. 12.

According to Diane McClellan, speech therapist, appointments can be made for screening by calling 722-4050.

The screening program will be held at the Special Services Building, 7335 Washington St., Romulus.

As we see it

Inflation distorts income tax

Not by design but simply by accident, the steady devaluation of the dollar is increasing the impact of the progressive income tax on many American taxpayers. Congress and the Legislature should revise the structure of state and federal income taxes to compensate for the unintended distortion caused by inflation. Obviously, income taxes will increase as income increases. A 10 percent increase in the cost of living might be followed by a 10 percent increase in income, for example. The taxpayer then will have the same purchasing power he had before. If his income taxes rise by 10 percent, he will be paying the same percentage of real income in taxes. But what if, as easily can happen, the 10 percent increase in income puts him in a higher income tax bracket? Then the tax take will jump to a higher percentage and he will be unable to maintain his standard of living. These figures prepared by the Tax Foundation show how federal income taxes rise at a steeper percentage than income. State income taxes do the same. It is in fact an essential and desirable result of the progressivity of income tax rates that exactly this kind of progressively steeper taxation will occur. That is based on the sound theory that as a man's purchasing power increases, his ability to pay taxes increases.

But what if, due to inflation, his purchasing power only can be maintained by higher income and this results in the loss of a greater share of his purchasing power to the tax collector? That is an inadvertent perversion of a good principle. It should be corrected in order to maintain public confidence in the equity of the income tax system.

Here is a table showing the effect of a 10 percent increase in taxable income on liabilities under the 1974 federal income tax rates:

Taxable income	Tax	Income after 10 percent increase	Tax on increased income	Increase Amount	in tax Percent
$1,000	$ 140	$ 1,100	$ 155	$ 15	10.7
3,000	450	3,300	501	51	11.3

EDUCATION

How much is enough?

By STAN OPOTOWSKY
Panax Special Columnist

With school upon us again, we return to the dilemma of how much to spend on education, and how much is too much.

We constantly are bombarded with complaints of excessive spending on one hand, and of not enough spending on the other.

Community after community votes slashes or holds down school budgets. But there are pretty good indications that these often are acts of desperation by frustrated and drained taxpayers who really would prefer another course.

They vote down the school budget because that is the only one presented to them for approval. It is indicated that they would take a different course if all community budgets were submitted to the electorate for approval.

They might even increase the spending on education, and save money instead on the bevy of boondoggles which are grouped under the umbrella of government in this country. But you can be certain that the Legislatures of this land are not about to give the voters full access to their tax dollars. Such a course certainly would condemn too many special interest pork barrels to feed the undeserving from the public pantry.

We should be strengthening the high schools...

So where do we draw the line at school spending? How much is enough, and how much is too much.

Those who constantly gnaw away at school budgets invariably call for teaching the three Rs and little more. They remind everyone that they were educated with no frills in a bygone day, and what was good enough for them is good enough for now.

They are, of course, wrong. In the first place, no one taught them such things as computer science because there were no computers then. In the second place, the demands of the modern world are far greater now.

We should be strengthening the high schools today rather than permitting them to deteriorate or even simply remain status quo.

Some educators are beginning to think that it would be more economical and more beneficial to the community if we made the high schools far more sophisticated educational establishments, and then in turn, cut down on the numbers we now send to college.

There are educators who feel that a first-rate high school education is more important than a college education.

In England, far fewer students go on to the university, and yet the Britain comes out of the school system with an education far superior to that which we give our youths in this country. That's because of the first-rate job the elementary and high schools do for their pupils.

The person destined to become a salesman or a draftsman or a computer programmer — and, remember, these are the jobs into which the vast majority will go — needs a basic education, some cultural polish and professional training.

These can all be delivered by a first-rate high school. And should be.

The Enterprise-Roman is committed to bringing the Bicentennial closer to our readers. And as part of that effort, a series, "The Michigan Big Story," will be published weekly. The 76-part series includes topics which contributed to the shaping and direction of the State of Michigan. The impact which this series is certain to have will provide a legacy for future generations of readers as they look back on what we did to celebrate the Bicentennial in Michigan, according to the Michigan Revolution Bicentennial Commission. The series is being prepared by the commission.

DETROIT (Nov. 29, 1760) — Fort Pontchartrain was surrendered to the British here today. French Captain Francois De Bellestre gave command of the post over to a British force led by Major Robert Rogers.

The fort, located on the banks of the Detroit River, now will be known as Fort Detroit.

The takeover ends 150 years of French rule in a large part of North America. Two months ago the governor of New France surrendered all French posts but New Orleans to the British. Today's takeover was a sequel to that surrender.

British Captain Donald Campbell will be the new commandant of Fort Detroit.

Asked about changes in the operations of the fort, Campbell replied: "We anticipate no major changes. On our march here from Fort Pitt, we met with a number of Indians, with whom we smoked the peace pipe. We hope to maintain those peaceful relations."

However, the British captain indicated that he is under orders to exercise a firmer hand with the Indians.

"No sales of rum, not so much gift giving. I rather think these measures will contribute to the good order of things," he said.

Campbell said that the British plan to make Fort Detroit (Pontchartrain) the center of the northwest fur trade.

"The French ran the fur trade as a government monopoly. We British permit the fur trade to be run on a free enterprise system," he said.

Law penalizes Michigan

By TOM OCHILTREE
Panax Washington Bureau

Senators from rural and southern areas pushed legislation through the Senate that would cost Michigan $279.5 million, or about 45 percent of federal water pollution control funds previously earmarked for the state. Sen. Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich.) said the attempt to change the formula for distribution of this federal money would have a devastating impact upon Michigan already wrestling with a heavy unemployment load.

Ironically, Griffin declared the legislation would penalize such states as Michigan which "have done the most to clean up their rivers and lakes."

Despite protests voiced by Griffin and the senators from other populous, industrial states the Senate approved the new formula 60-35. Both Griffin and Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.) voted against the change.

The new formula, based on what was described as population and need, was contained in an amendment which Sen. Herman E. Talmadge (D-Ga.) introduced and succeeded in getting attached to an antirecessionary public works program. The Senate adopted the amendment July 29 during its drive to adjourn for an August holiday.

Defending his approach, Talmadge said that during the depression of the 1930s "we learned that millions of Americans could be employed in highly productive and constructive jobs."

Replying, Griffin said: "For Michigan, the state hardest hit by the current recession, the result of this amendment would be more unemployment. That would be unconscionable."

From the other side of the Capitol, Rep. Philip E. Ruppe (R-Mich.) termed the Talmadge legislation "an outright steal of federal water pollution control funds."

He said the senators supporting the amendment were engaging in Congress "ancient game of narrow sectional pork barrelling."

"This new formula pays only nodding attention to needs, and if finally enacted into law, would undo the work of three Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) need surveys conducted in the last four years," he added.

Pointing out that Michigan's loss under the new formula would be the highest of any state, Ruppe urged members of a House-Senate Conference Committee to resist the Talmadge amendment.

Under the original formula Michigan is entitled to $626 million. The Talmadge amendment would cut this to $346.5 million.

In appointment

Milliken takes care

It was 1:30 p.m. and Gov. William Milliken was calling Daniel Demlow to tell him he had just been decided on as the new chairman of the Michigan Public Service Commission.

There was just one more step. The governor wanted to personally go over copies of Demlow's recent income tax returns and a list of any of his assets and debts.

Demlow furnished the documents and before the day was out the appointment was announced. The financial check, while done quietly, is a routine part of every gubernatorial appointment these days to a policy making board or commission. It has been done ever since the close of the 1974 political campaign.

Two events prompted the new step by the governor. The first was a flap over charges his former executive secretary, Bill Hettiger, had maintained improper business ties while he worked for Milliken. Hettiger produced personal income tax statements to disprove the allegation.

The second, and most important, was the embarrassment the governor suffered from revelations about the financial holdings of Lt. Gov. James J. Damman during the 1974 campaign. The controversy could have caused the loss of the election.

Milliken himself made a complete public disclosure of his income and assets during the campaign. At that time he asked his personal staff to submit to him a similar, confidential statement, of their worth.

Now he has gone another step with appointments made after the 1974 campaign.

"This is a precaution introduced in this era of heightened sensitivity to potential conflict of interest," he said. "In addition to increased sensitivity, there is an increased awareness of what we can or should be looking for in this post-Watergate period with its demands for more stringent standards."

"Those of us in public life must be willing to live in a goldfish bowl and perform in a way that sets an example for others."

During the summer

CAP squadron asks: 'What have you done?'

The Wayne-Romulus Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol (CAP) in an effort to inform residents of the group's concerns and accomplishments has developed a new program of monthly informational correspondence to keep people up to date on the CAP.

The first monthly news memo is by Cadet S. Sgt. Sue Organvan and offers a view of what CAP did this summer.

"Have you been just sitting around the house all summer doing nothing? Here are just some of the things that you would have already done if you were a member of the Wayne-Romulus Cadet Squadron of Civil Air Patrol.

"If you were a member you could have gone on a trip to Washington D.C., and on the way there have visited the Piper Aircraft Factory in Pennsylvania.

In Washington we stayed at Andrews Air Force Base and visited the Washington Monument, Jefferson Memorial, Smithsonian Institute, Pentagon and Arlington National Cemetery. On the way home we visited the Luray Caverns and Mount Vernon.

"If you were a member you could have been part of the 'Come Fly With Me' program. This was set up to teach cadets more about airplanes and to familiarize them with the procedures of taking off, flying and landing an aircraft.

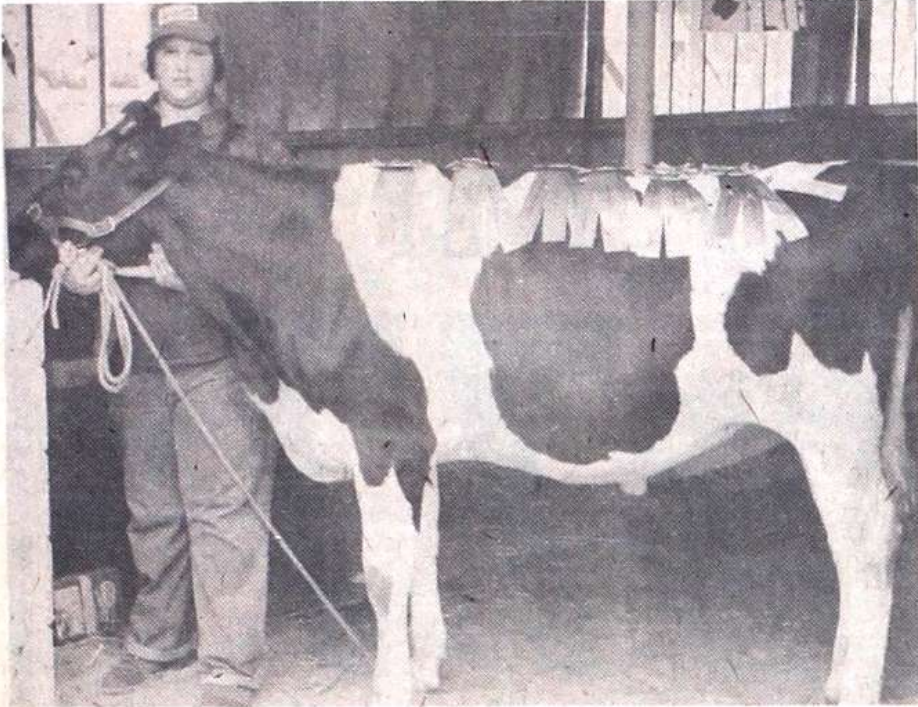

"If you were a member you could have been on the Wayne-Romulus Drill Team.

"The team took first place and five trophies in the Michigan Drill Competition against Canada. They earned the right to represent Michigan Wing at the Regional Drill Competition at Grissom Air Force Base in Indiana. There they drilled against teams from Ohio, Illinois and Indiana. Ohio came in first place and Michigan second.

"If you were a member you could have went to Adrian Airport for a Dawn Patrol and an air show.

Here the Cadets guarded experimental aircraft." More information call Lt. JoAnn Douglas at 291-8172.

Storm disrupts lighting

Normal operations at the Van Buren Township Hall were disrupted a bit recently after a light pole outside the building was struck by lightning.

According to township workers, lights on the phone system wouldn't work following the evening lightning strike during a massive thunderstorm which hit the area two weeks ago.

Workmen were on hand and corrected the problem.

'Y' adds new ballet class

YWCA of Western Wayne is adding a new concept in exercise: Ballet Exercise for Beginners from 7 to 8 p.m. Thursday evenings, taught by Folk Dance Instructor Nick Michalakos of Westland.

Michalakos began his interest in ballet indirectly through his love of international folk dancing.

He reasoned that ballet was the grammar, the common denominator of dancing and studied ballet between classes at Wayne State University and the midnight shift at Dodge Forge. Even while stationed in Japan with the United States Army Michalakos pursued his study with Rie Tamanyu of Sendai and for two decades dropped his ballet training while continuing his folk dancing.

When the opportunity came to teach a class at the Family YWCA, Michalakos took it and his students asked for his return this fall. He believes that teaching ballet is just part of the family athletic pattern: his sons wrestle, run track, scuba drive, play tennis and basketball, and his daughter cheerleads.

Ballet is not all that Michalakos teaches, on school days you'll find him at the Ecorse High School teaching Spanish, English, and English for the foreign born.

Call 561-4110 or come into the New YWCA Building, 26279 Michigan Ave., for classes starting Sept. 25.

Western Wayne Unit hosts detection clinic

The Western Wayne Unit of the Michigan Cancer Foundation (MCF) will co-sponsor a free, 4-day Pap clinic Sept. 16-19.

The clinic, co-sponsored by the Dearborn Health Council, will be held at the Cherry Hill Presbyterian Church, located at Cherry Hill and Telegraph in Dearborn, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. Appointments may be made by calling the MCF Western Wayne Unit office at 565-0020 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

The cervical cancer death rate in the United States has been reduced by 60 percent since 1940, due to an increased commitment by women to having regular Pap tests and pelvic examinations.

Through early detection, cervical cancer can be cured. The MCF urges every woman to have an annual examination and Pap test.

In 1974, more than 14,000 Detroit-area women took advantage of the free Pap tests offered through the Community Pap test program of the MCF. Funding for the project is provided through Torch Drive and United Way support of the foundation.

Shop seeks baby clothing

The Romulus Thrift Shop is hoping to give someone a baby shower, but needs the help of Western Wayne County residents to make its plans reality.

The shop, operating with limited activities at present, hopes to provide showers for expectant mothers who cannot afford new clothes for their babies.

Distributing baby clothing and infant-care items has been one of the main projects of the shop, which has received funding from the Archdiocese of Detroit's Campaign for Human Development. The shop's supply of such items is at a low, and donations of new baby clothing, including pajamas, booties, receiving blankets, sweater sets, diapers and crib sheets are needed.

The shop also is accepting contributions of sewing supplies — needles, yarn, flannel yard goods and thread — which, according to the head of the Thrift Shop, Florence Klein, will be turned into clothing by a group of volunteer "seamstresses."

The clothing can be left in local churches in specially marked boxes. Used baby items can be brought the shop between 9 a.m. and 12 p.m. any day.

The shop is located at 36515 Bibbins, Romulus, on the east side of the Recreation Building.

Mrs. Klein said the shop also is accepting maternity clothing to be given to expantant needy mothers.

For further information on the "baby showers" call 941-5323 or write P.O. Box 375, Romulus.

Mrs. Klein said the shop currently is operating in a liaison capacity serving as a go-between for "have and have nots," added that it has earned its tax-exempt status.

There also is a need for canned formula and jars of food for emergency situations, she said.

CAMP VISITOR — Mark Covington of Belleville (rear row, second from right) found he had something in common with youngsters from Grayling, Mt. Clemens and Detroit. The youth was among youngsters throughout the state to attend Michigan National Guard Boys Camp this summer. Stopping for a photograph during one of the camp's ac-

AUTO FACTS

Special tools that you will need to perform a thorough tune-up should cost no more than $100. It is an investment well worth making when you consider that a major tune-up by a mechanic costs a great deal of money, depending on the engine and the area of the country. A useful rule when buying tools and test instruments is to stick to well-known products. Many manufacturers offer several price lines. Don't feel that you must buy the most expensive equipment.

Top quality replacement parts and tools for foreign and American cars are available at KOSIN'S AUTO PARTS, 26831 Michigan, Inkster. Our experienced personnel will be happy to help you select the particular parts you need for your car. We offer fast, friendly and expert counter service. Our complete machine shop service handles repair jobs including turning brake drums, valve work and rebuilding engines. Most big repair jobs require the services of your local garage mechanic or service station, but for those jobs you do yourself, visit KOSIN'S. Call us at 563-3894. We are open weeknights until 8 P.M.

Smith eyes '76 Olympics

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

Brad Smith's goal is to make the 1976 United States Olympics Wrestling team.

And the former Romulus High all-stater took a giant step in that direction last week by placing third in the pre-Olympics trials held in Montreal, site of next year's Olympics.

"I sincerely feel I have a good chance of making the team," said Smith, ex-All-Area wrestler who presently is a sophomore at the University of Toledo. "I competed in Montreal with a sore right knee and managed to place third at 149½ pounds."

"If I can stay healthy, I think I'll be ready for the U.S. trials."

No date has been set for the United States Freestyle Wrestling trials as yet, but they will be held sometime next spring in order to choose the candidates for the team that eventually will represent the nation at the classic Games.

Although many of the nations that will be competing in Montreal in 1976 were represented in last week's trials, none brought their actual teams.

Each tested potential candidates.

"In fact, the guy I lost to in Russia last year at this time was here, and we got to talk about our chances," Smith said.

He was a member of the United States Junior Wrestling team that toured the Soviet Union last year.

In Montreal, Smith defeated H. VanLandeghe of Belgium in 4:21 after battling to a draw with East Germany's G. Weisenberger in the first round.

"I lost to the East German wrestler because of a new rule I knew nothing about," Smith confessed. "We both had a bad match. He tore up my knee and I injured him, so we had our problems the rest of the way."

Smith's bid for first place was shattered in the third round when Japan's H. Nanao pinned the Romulus grappler.

"I'm going to take it easy the rest of the summer and will be back in school in a couple of weeks where I hope to get ready for the Mid-American Conference," Smith added.

"As a freshman, Smith finished third in the conference."

If Smith should realize his goal, he'll become the first area athlete ever to represent the area in the Olympics.

EYES ON MONTREAL — Ex-Romulus High 2-time all-stater Brad Smith has set his goals on making the United States Olympic Wrestling team. The 18-year-old University of Toledo sophomore took a big step in realizing that goal recently by placing third in the pre-Olympic trials held at the University of Montreal in Montreal, Canada.

LeBeau tries to get Huron grid going

Tom LeBeau knows that it's like coaching a winner. He fielded championship-caliber football teams at Monroe Catholic Central. Now, the former University of Dayton grid star has the dubious honor of forging a winner out of New Boston Huron, a team that finished with an 0-9 record last season.

"We're not looking for a championship team, but we'll take it if it comes along," LeBeau said. "We're just trying to get the program started here. We've seen these kids play, so it isn't that they are new or anything."

Huron returns eight lettermen off of last year's squad that finished in the cellar of the league. Leading the pack is quarterback Craig Beattie, who has earned three stripes as a member of the Chiefs' varsity squad. Beattie definitely will be the key to any offensive success the Huron's have this season. He has the experience and the knowledge to make the offense click. Also, fullback Rick

Elkins should be ready for a grueling campaign that begins Sept. 13 for the Chiefs. Elkins, hampered with injuries last year, has all the tools for providing Huron with key yardage.

The Chiefs get a nonleague tuneup for their opener at Milan. They'll open up the league conference the following week at Flat Rock.

Perennial powerhouses Tecumseh, Monroe CC and Flat Rock again look like the teams to beat in the league, but the defending champ has a slim edge, thanks to the return of 16 lettermen.

Workshop set for coaches on injuries

Area high school coaches have until Sept. 13 to register for Riverside Osteopathic Hospital's workshop on treatment of sports-oriented injuries and hear Dick Vitale, noted University of Detroit basketball coach.

Vitale will speak on "Motivation and Dealing with the Modern Day athlete" on Sept. 13.

Open to all coaches, trainers, student-trainers, physical education teachers and intramural coaches of both sexes, the workshop will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the hospital's Physical Therapy Department.

Instructors will teach the identification and testing of injuries; practical treatment of injuries on the high school level; a brief anatomy lesson and emergency first aid.

Teachers will be a team of registered physical therapists led by Dennis Kasza, D.O., University of Detroit team physician.

A registration fee of $5 will cover the cost of luncheon and supplies. Registration will be handled at the office of James MacCallum, vice-president of Riverside Osteopathic Hospital. For information call MacCallum at 676-4200, ext. 211.

Riverside Osteopathic Hospital is located at 150 Truxa Street, Trenton.

CAGE STARS — Learning the ABCs of basketball at the Wolverine Basketball Clinic this summer were Rick Smith (second from left), Randy Pichan and Jay Richert who will enter New Boston Huron High School this fall. The trio attended the 3-week camp at Wolverine, Mich., where they were drilled in the fundamentals of the game, including defense and all facets of offense. The three players will be freshmen at the high school.

Minty tackles cross country

No matter how the 1975 cross country season ends at Belleville High, the Tigers will have a first. Gordon Minty, a British subject, is the first English national to coach an area prep team.

The 27-year-old former Eastern Michigan track and cross country star replaces Bruce Romant, who resigned the coaching position when he was appointed the high school's assistant principal this year.

"This is the first head coaching job I have had," said Minty, who is in the process of changing citizenship. "I really am enthused about the opportunity."

Minty, who finished third in 1973 and 17th last year at the NCAA cross country invitationals, has his eyes on making the U.S. Olympic track team.

"I put a lot of mileage in the morning and late afternoons," he said. "And I will be running some with our boys."

Minty met with his charges for the first time last Friday and said he was pleased with the turnout. Between 16 and 20 runners were on hand for the initial meeting.

Romulus artist takes part in art fair

Romulus artist Thomas Schultz of 35610 Margaret Drive has been invited to participate in the Lafayette Park Art Fair, Sept. 13 and 14.

The fair will be held in the Shopping Plaza, Lafayette and Orleans, in downtown Detroit.

The Lafayette Park Art Fair has grown from a small "clothesline" exhibit into one of the top quality art fairs in the state, a spokesman said. More than 200 Michigan artists were juried by Dr. John Neff, curator of modern art at the Detroit Institute of Arts. Out of all these entries, only 88 were invited to show at the fair.

In addition to Schultz' pencil drawings, just about every variety of art form will be exhibited, including ink drawings, watercolors, paintings, prints, photographs, ceramics, sculptures, glassware, jewelry, fibers and toys. There will be an art auction at 3 p.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. On Saturday, auctioneers will be Jerry Blocker, news director, WGPR-TV and David Ball, director of the Methodist Children's Village. Leading the auction on Sunday will be Detroit Common Councilman Ernest Browne Jr., and WRIF newscaster Beth Conrad.

Fair festivities will run from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. both days. Throughout the fair a number of artists will demonstrate the processes used in creating their work. The fair is sponsored and organized by a volunteer group of residents of Lafayette Park and Elmwood Park.

Firm handles phone callers

A long-time Ypsilanti telephone answering company now can offer Belleville residents the service.

Grezinger's Telephone Answering Service can provide the first type of help in the Belleville area thanks to a new Michigan Bell Telephone Co. system which provides for automatic forwarding of calls to another number. Cost of the Bell service is $2.65 per month for businesses and $1.65 per month for residences.

Grezingers can answer calls for any resident or business on a rate schedule of $30 per month for 24-hour a day service, $25 per month for 8-hour per day service or $10 per month and 50 cents per call for occasional service.

Information on the program can be obtained by calling 482-0191.

Adult ed has free classes for residents

Romulus area adults who want to resume their educational careers have an opportunity to take free classes from Romulus adult education, starting Sept. 15.

Bill Smith, director of the program, said 75 adults received diplomas last year and another schedule of classes will be offered at four convenient locations throughout the city.

According to Smith, nearly half the adults in Romulus still have some high school work to complete. Potential students can contact him to find out exactly what classes they need in order to qualify for an official high school diploma.

Another program available to area residents is the Romulus GED testing service. The test is given to Romulus adult education students free of charge while other examinees are charged $10. Successful completion of the GED (General Educational Development) test leads to a high school equivalency certificate from the state.

Additional information about Romulus adult education may be obtained by calling the Romulus Board of Education at 941-1600, ext. 37.

Committee considers new county executive

A proposal by two Wayne County commissioners that the voters be given the opportunity to create a county executive office in next year's elections is before a committee of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

Commissioners Mary E. Dumas (R-Livonia) and Richard E. Manning (D-Redford) submitted a resolution to that effect at an Aug. 21 board meeting.

The resolution was referred to the board's General Government Committee for consideration. Manning is the chairman and Mrs. Dumas the vice-chairman of the 6-member committee.

The resolution declares: "Wayne County government as presently constituted is unwieldy and often ineffective due to the dual necessity of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners to serve as both a legislative and administrative body."

A majority of board members voted against putting an executive proposal on the ballot prior to last year's elections after sought-after amendments to the state-county executive act were not passed by the State Legislature.

The Dumas-Manning resolution urges that the Legislature be asked to amend the act "timely" so that the alternatives of a directly-elected or an appointed executive may be placed before the voters on the same ballot.

As the legislation, Public Act 139 now stands, the Board of Commissioners may put only one or the other on the ballot.

An appointed executive would be named by the Board of Commissioners.

The resolution also urges that "in the interim the Legislature be requested to enact statutes which more clearly will define and strengthen the legislative power of the Board of Commissioners."

Opposition to placing the question on the ballot last year centered on the charge that Act 139 was vague and contradictory with regard to the powers and duties of various elective county offices.

Manning said: "Wayne County government, with the budget of more than $300 million and myriad responsibilities for public services, is too big and complicated to function properly with its present antiquated structure. As in any other big organization, there must be one chief executive."

Oakland County last year became the first county in Michigan to have a county executive after the voters opted for an elected executive.

Passage of Act 139 resulted from a study of the county structure which was sponsored by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

'Y' puts emphasis on the family fun classes

Two different family fun classes are being offered this fall at the YWCA of Western Wayne County. Variety crafts and popular square or round dancing with the crafts class taught by Jan Cortis, will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday evenings.

You can take all 10 sessions or either the first 5 which start with needle point, jewelry wire and beads, terrarium and three artificial flowers; ribbon, chenille and pom pom roses. The second session will be holiday crafts such as boutique tree decorations, corn husk dolls, dried flower center pieces and pine cone wreaths. Early registration for either or both parts of this class is necessary due to limited enrollment required.

The other "Something New Each Week" is square or round dancing for beginners and non-dancers. This class is geared to everyone — children, teens, adults, singles and couples. Instructor Rosie Hunter will teach 75 basic figures to set routines which are called CUED, done in formations, lines, circles and squares.

This type of family fun often is referred to as the American folk form, round or square dancing.

Included are some Latin Cha Cha Cha, Tango and American waltz. The two Step and ever used Box Patterns.

Pre-Registration for classes starting the week of Sept. 20 are beginning now at 26279 Michigan Avenue for either or both of these classes. Call 561-4110 for dates and details, and pack your Fall with Fun.

Switch stamps for food

Western Wayne County food stamp recipients are able to exchange old food stamps for new ones after the old stamps expired Sunday, according to Dennis M. Doyle, Regional Administrator of the Good and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

"Recipients will be able to exchange the old stamps at local food stamp offices designated by state agencies," he said. "The exchange will be dollar for dollar, new food stamps for old."

USDA introduced the new food stamp series on March 1, 1975. The new $1, $5, and $10 denominations replace the 50 cent, $2 and old $5 stamps.

School buses: Potential for injury is there

School buses may be one of the safest means of travel, but the potential for serious injury accidents while transporting one million Michigan children 125 million miles each school year is mind-boggling, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Approximately 40 percent of the state's 2.5 million students in grades kindergarten through 12 ride buses to class," said

Arthur C. Gibson, Auto Club Safety and Traffic Engineering Department manager.

In the 1974-75 school year, eight youngsters lost their lives in bus-related mishaps, the highest total in three years.

Another 101 school-age pedestrians (5 to 14 years old) were killed last year — many of them while walking to and from school.

"A good number of the deaths occurred because students were unaware of the dangers of crossing streets to and from school. That means it's the responsibility of motorists, including school bus drivers, to be extra alert for the 180,000 students starting kindergarten in Michigan this September," Gibson said.

Auto Club suggests parents teach children these rules on riding the bus or walking to school:

- Walk only on the sidewalk. If there is none, walk facing traffic, on the

- shoulder of the road.
- Watch for turning cars and never cross between parked vehicles.
- Leave home in plenty of time to arrive at the bus stop and stay well off the roadway while waiting to be picked up.
- Remain seated while the bus is moving and keep hands and arms inside at all times.
- After leaving the bus, walk at least 10 steps ahead of its before crossing the road, waiting for the driver to signal it is safe. Never cross at the back of the bus.

Motorists always should remember to:

- Be extra alert when seeing a bus in the distance. Children running for a bus sometimes forget to look before crossing streets.
- Stop at least 10 feet in front or in back of a bus when it is picking up or dropping off children on any road without barriers or dividers between lanes. It's state law.

Ma Bell eyes interim hike

Michigan Bell has asked that part of its pending request for an $88 million rate increase go into effect on an interim basis as soon as possible.

David K. Easlick, company president, said most of the request for at least $60 million in interim relief is needed to meet the latest round of employee wage and benefit increases now being paid as a result of a union settlement reached in mid-1974.

The balance is needed to assure continued good service and to enable Michigan Bell to keep up its $400 million construction program that supports 10,000 jobs in other industries in the state, he added.

He emphasized that Michigan Bell is not seeking an increase in its authorized profit level in its current case, only to bring earnings closer to the amount approved by the Michigan Public Service Commission.

When it filed its overall case in April with the commission, the company said it would seek interim relief about the time it began paying the higher wages which went into effect last month.

Students heed college check-in deadlines

By LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

The mass exodus to college campuses has begun and Belleville is slowly being drained of its recent crop of high school graduates. Acceptances from the various schools began pouring in last spring and decisions on which place to choose were a major part of the senior year.

Nearby Eastern Michigan University (EMU) in Ypsilanti will claim a goodly number of Belleville High School alumni. Among those already cracking the books are Ruth Moore, John Szilinis, Jennifer Henning, Cheryl Thompson, Colleen Byrnes and Terry Landowski.

Still others are Tim Raymond, whose brother, Doug, is a junior at EMU; Nancy Muse, Mike Sotomayer, Dan Mattson, Karen Griess, Renee Jones and Sher Buckner.

Western Michigan University (WMU) in Kalamazoo also has a lot of Belleville talent. Among the earlier arrivals on campus were Kathy Bassett and Jim Schweigert who were invited to participate in marching band activities for 4 days before the term started. Kathy, a freshman, vied for a spot in the flag rank while Jim, who is completing his final terms, took part in the rifle section.

Others who started classes yesterday at WMU were Rusty McQuaid, Bonnie Turrentine, Deanna Halcomb, Cynthia Johnson, Sue Smith, Rick Sprout, and Wendy Turney whose brother, Don, is a senior this fall.

Mary Cicotte began studies at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant a couple weeks ago as did her brother, Al, who is in his junior year.

Out of state enrollees include Cheryl Batzer who plans to pursue a degree in nursing at Capital University in Columbus, Ohio. Also in Ohio is Arlo Ray Liebele who was scouted by the diving coaches from Kent State University and encouraged to be part of their team. Heading northward is Midge Bruin who will be at Dr. Martin Luther College in New Ulm, Minn.

"Go blue" will be the battle cry of new University of Michigan freshmen, Dave Barber, Bob Ware and Steve Leach. Brian Cullin and Steve Davis will also sport the UM insignia but at the Dearborn campus.

Cheering for the Spartans when the two schools meet will be future Michigan State University co-eds, Sharon Petrasky, Betty Teasdale and Claire Volk and also Larry Branham, Al Capili and John and Charlie Daughtery.

Saginaw Valley College at University Center has Dave Dapsi on its frosh rosters while Hillsdale College has Ann Paas and Washtenaw Community College has Roxanne Morris.

Scott Woodby 'chose Michigan Tech at Houghton as his future alma mater and Karen Greathouse opted for Kalamazoo College. Valerie Losen will study at Grand Rapids Bible School.

A recent graduate of Michigan State University, Pam Miller is now attending the University of Denver Law School in Colorado. Cindy Paas has returned to Notre Dame University in South Bend, Ind. for her third year and Tom Griffith is back at Michigan State for his junior year. Peggy Books, a senior at MSU, will soon begin her practice teaching in the Traverse City area. Returning to Bloomington, Ind., senior Pam Elliott will continue working toward a major in music.

So, be it doctor, lawyer, merchant or chief, Belleville's young adults are busy meeting new roommates and getting the feel of their own particular school or are back to the old routine awaiting what 1975-76 has to offer.

Lloyd's parents, the Fred Glovers of Ecorse Road, Romulus.

During their stay, little Tracee was baptized at Our Lady of Loretto Church in Redford (her mother's home city) where Susie and John Hochstein filled the roles of godparents. Also on the visitors' agenda were trips to Tahquamenon Falls and other parts of northern Michigan.

They also spent time in Westland with Lloyd's brother and wife, Dan and Norma Glover, and the fellas' grandmother, Marta Zacharyczuk of Garden City. Other stops were to see an uncle and aunt, Joe and Susie Zacharyczuk of Garden City and with relatives in Belleville, Jacob and Valerie Glover.

Before leaving for home soil on Aug. 15, the foursome spent a few days with Kathy's parents, the Hochsteins in Redford.

WOTM ready fall schedule

Belleville Women of the Moose, Chapter 1135, held a Star Recorder Chapter Night with 11 chapters from the surrounding area participating and 11 star recorders conducting the ritual.

The chapter also installed co-workers, Sally Moose and Barbara Stamper as chairmen. Mrs. Moose, who is in charge of publicity, recently called her committee together to make plans for the month of September.

Two new members joining the defending circle were Marjorie Buibbe and Virginia Rushlow.

Speaker for the evening was Matilda Wilson who spoke on friendship and how a co-worker becomes a star recorder. Senior regent for the evening was Deputy Grand Regent of Michigan, Joyce Bekker. Star recorder Louise Steger was in charge of the evening activities.

Mrs. Steger also was responsible for the "come as you are" party held in August.

Members are reminded that meetings are held the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

Babies are in the news

"Babies are our business, our only business" is the slogan used by a famous food company which recently made headlines due to the results of an analysis of its product. Well, if babies are their ONLY interest, they sure are doing one rotten job.

In our case, babies are NOT our only business but we surely do enjoy writing about their arrivals, their subsequent christenings and their birthdays and growing up years.

Several local couples have announcements to make concerning new additions to their family trees, among them Belleville residents, Cecil and Betty Barton of Harmony Lane, who became grandparents for the fifth time on July 18.

Their daughter and son-in-law, Debbie and Bobby

Perry of 4511 Columbus Avenue Anderson, Ind. have a new heir, Robert Frederick Perry III, who was born at St. John's Memorial Hospital in Anderson. The 8 lb. - 6 oz. newcomer is the brother of Tiffany Belle Perry, who will be 2-years old this month.

The baby, who is being called Robb, is the second grandchild of a former Belleville couple, Bob and Lucille Perry of Saline.

Lake Orion, Mich. has a new resident. He's Benjamin Jacob Horste who is "holding court" for friends and relatives at the home of his parents, Kenneth and Cheryl Horste, formerly of Belleville.

Born July 31, the baby weighed 7 lbs. - 14 ozs. He is the first grandchild for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baisch and the second for

Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Horste, all of Belleville.

A Romulus resident has given birth to twins. Patricia Cavazos of 7160 Hollywood St., named her twin sons, Jason Paul and Anthony Dale.

Jason weighed 5 lbs. - 7 1/2 ozs. at birth while his brother weighed in at 6 lbs. - 8 oz.

The two have a sister, Maryann, who is 13 months old.

Eric Christopher Dahlstrom, the infant son of Jeffery and Paula Dahlstrom of 37412 Heroux St., Romulus, was recently christened at St. Anthony's Catholic Church of Belleville.

Godparents for the baby were Gregory Dahlstrom of Romulus and Diane Crabtree of Dearborn Heights.

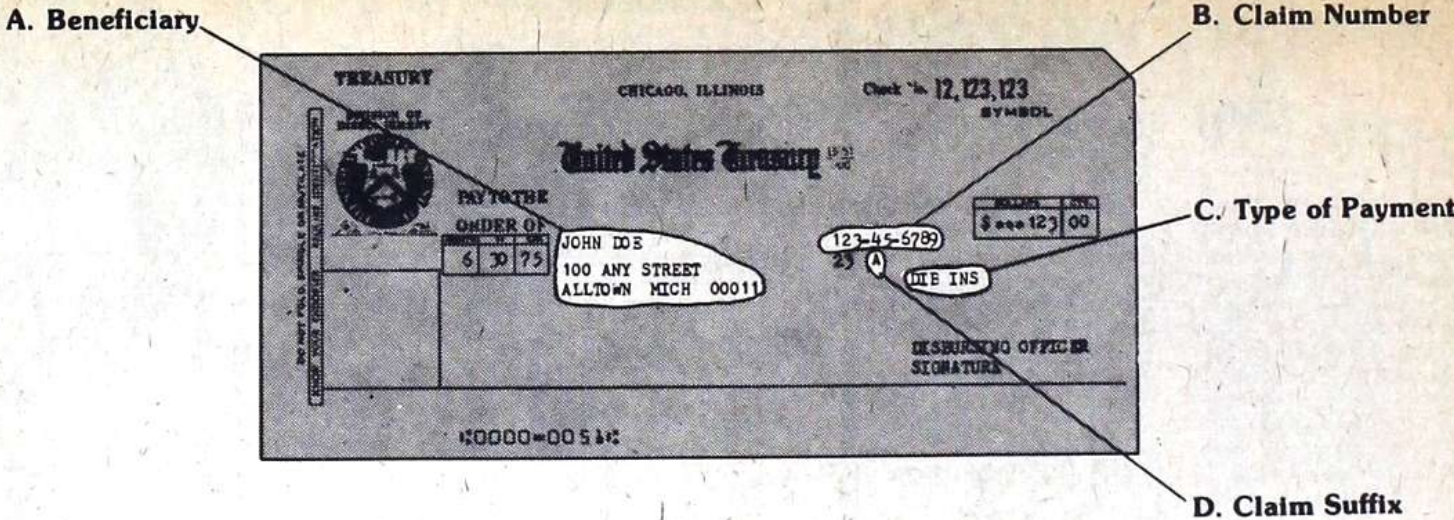

Eric was born to the Dahlstroms on July 13.

Carleton church site of August wedding

St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Carleton was the setting Aug. 16 for the double ring rite which united Susan Marie Talaga and Dennis Leon Stein in holy matrimony.

The Rev. James Machack presided at the 5 p.m. ceremony which was witnessed by some 150 relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Talaga Jr. of 192 Clarence St., Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stein of 2035 Carleton West Rd., Carleton, are parents of the young couple.

Given in marriage by her father, Susan appeared in a gown of lace over satin designed with a square neckline, lace empire bodice and long chiffon sleeves which ended in wide lace cuffs. Her white lace hat was encircled by wide white ribbon which fell in streamers at the back.

Miniature carnations tipped in yellow and coral, daisies and baby's breath comprised her bouquet. Completing her ensemble was a blue pearl necklace which had belonged to her grandmother.

As honor attendant, Rita Kidd of Belleville donned a sleeveless apricot frock with a matching long sleeved jacket. Her sheer picture hat was traced with ribbon and her bouquet contained miniature carnations tipped in coral, daisies and baby's breath. Bridesmaids in identical yellow costumes were Elizabeth Bokon of Belleville, sister of the bride; Donna Stein of Carleton, sister of the bridegroom, and Terri Hnot of Westland, cousin of the bride.

The bridegroom chose his brother, David, to be best man. Ushers were Tony Talaga of Belleville, brother of the bride; Robert Millard of Carleton and Russ Van Washenova of South Rockwood.

For the occasion, Mrs. Talaga chose to wear a long gown made with a pink bodice and white skirt. A corsage of pink tipped carnations complemented her dress. The bridegroom's mother wore a long green gown accented with a corsage of green tipped carnations.

Some 200 guests attended the reception which followed at the UAW Hall, Local 898, in Ypsilanti.

After a week long honeymoon in Clare, Mich., the newlyweds took up residence at 12123 Bristol, Carleton.

The bride attended Belleville High School and her husband, who graduated from Airport High School in Carleton, is employed by B & M Industries of Newport.

The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner on the Thursday before the wedding.

Birthday pot luck shared by Romulus Senior Citizens

The monthly pot luck birthday dinner was the highlight of the Romulus Senior Citizens' recent August meeting. An afternoon of bingo followed the party at which Robert Martin, a candidate for the Romulus City Council, spoke on his views and aims if elected.

Walter Biechle of Sky World Holiday Tours informed the group of the activities which are to be included in the upcoming bus trip to the Smokey Mountains.

The club was proud to learn that Edward Wallace, Fred White and Eva Harrison had received certificates of merit from the Michigan State Fair for their work in the senior citizen category.

Members are reminded that bowling begins at 9 a.m. Sept. 15 at the Romulus Bowling Center on Huron River Drive. Because most of the club officers will be away on the bus trip Sept. 9, that regular meeting will be postponed until Sept. 16.

Hostesses for September are Mary Wisniewski, Jean Zaleski and Eva Harrison.

Variety meats include liver, brains, heart, kidneys, sweetbreads, tongue and tripe. These meats are usually good buys because they are excellent sources of many essential nutrients, are often economical and offer interesting variety for the menu. Since variety meats are more perishable than other meats, they should be cooked and served soon after purchase.

Book nook

Library loaded with fiction

If Sherlock Holmes and the world of who-dunits is your reading "bag", you should enjoy delving into Nicholas Meyer's best seller which has Dr. Watson doing the reminiscing.

Or if the days of King Arthur's court holds a fancy for you, there's a new Norah Lofts book which deals with knights and knighthood in fictionalized form.

Or if you just like reading about everyday people and their workday problems, there's an Agnes Turnbull novel about a young man and an Al Young book on a young black woman who both deal with life in their own ways. And, too, you might like reading about England's social life and customs in the 19th century as penned by Joan Aiken.

A myriad of reading matter just awaits your pleasure at the Romulus Public Library which is located at 11121 Wayne Road. If nothing we mention appeals to you, simply browse through the many shelves of books or flip through the card index files and you're sure not to go home empty-handed.

FICTION

"The Seven-per-cent Solution" by Nicholas Meyer. Dr. Watson records the historic meeting of Sherlock Holmes and Freud in a manuscript discovered in Hampshire, England where it had lain neglected since 1939.

"Knight's Acre" by Norah Lofts. Sir Godfrey Tallboys goes to Spain to compete in a tournament and is captured by the Moors. With the aid of an Arab girl whom he saved from being flogged he begins a long and dangerous journey back to England.

"The Richlands" by Agnes Turnbull. A young man rejects a college education to manage the family farm he loves.

"Who is Angelina?" by Al Young. A young, educated black woman searches for her answer to: Who am I really, and what am I to do with my life?

"Midnight is a Place" by Joan Aiken. Lucas leads a lonely monotonous life in the house of his unpleasant guardian until the unexpected arrival of an unusual little girl presages a series of events that completely change his life. About life in England is the 19th century.

"The Masters of Bow Street" by John Creasey. Saga of the founding of the London Police Force, the creation of the Bow Street Runners.

"Loving Evie" by Anthony Caputi. A professor marries one of his students and quickly learns that living with her is a world apart from making love to her.

G.S. volunteers being recruited

Interested adults, particularly young working men and women, are being sought as Girl Scout volunteers in the third annual recruitment drive of the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council which continues through Sept. 15.

According to Council President, Jean Galan, a growing number of Girl Scout troop leaders are single adults, ages 22 to 27, who work fulltime. Of the 120 volunteers recruited in last year's drive, the majority were from this age group.

"These adults seem to care deeply about their communities and about growing girls," Mrs. Galan said. "Moreover, they enjoy traditional Girl Scout activities, such as hiking, camping, crafts, ecology projects and community service. And, of course, the Girl Scouts themselves love having leaders who are just a little older than themselves, and, therefore, rather glamorous."

"Of course, we count on mothers and fathers of Girl Scouts to make up the core of our volunteer group," he added. "Committed parents add both love and continuity to our program."

The need for volunteers in the Huron Valley Council is growing, even though the number of Girl Scout troops already is at an all-time high, 599 this fall, compared with 563 a year ago. Growing enrollment accounts for this, with 7 percent more girls in the council this month than a year ago.

"Girl Scouting allows men and women of any age to combine service to the community with the fun of making friends with neighborhood children and adults, and exploring the out-of-doors," Mrs. Galan said.

The Huron Valley Council currently has four types of openings for volunteers: troop leaders, assistant troop leaders, troop committee members and program resource persons. Troop leaders are responsible for helping girls select and organize troop objectives and projects, as well as coordinating the efforts of volunteer assistants. Each leader has a volunteer supervisor who counsels on all phases of the position. Assistant troop leaders attend troop meetings with the leader to help with individual girls or groups on special projects.

Troop committee members provide a broad base of community support for the troop as well as transportation, chaperones and other assistance for troop activities.

Program resource persons meet with any number of troops sharing expertise in such fields as ecology, photography, crafts, dancing and career planning. The Huron Valley Girl Scout Council is a United Way Agency.

Interested individuals can obtain further information by contacting the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council by mail at Box 539, Ypsilanti, or by calling 483-2370.

For 200th celebration

Parade participation sought

An invitation has been issued to all Michigan residents, including those living in Western Wayne County, to take part in the state's Bicentennial parade, reportedly the longest such event planned to observe our nation's 200th birthday.

Ervin A. Steiner, chairman of the Wayne County Bicentennial Committee said some 2,500 invitations have been mailed to mayors, block clubs, civic groups, schools, business, labor and ethnic groups to expand the participation in the event, planned to march down Woodward Avenue in Detroit on May 2, 1976.

"We plan to make this a statewide Bicentennial celebration that will long be remembered," he added. "We hope to have more active participants in this parade than some parades have spectators." The parade route, a part of which will cover the length of the annual Thanksgiving Day parade, will stretch from the State Fairgrounds to the Civic Center.

Approximately 100 floats already have been committed to take part in the parade, but the committee has set a goal of 225 floats to surpass a record of 200 set in a South American city several years ago.

As a salute to the state, the entire parade will "be on wheels," and will be underscored with the inclusion of some 100 antique and modern cars in the parade to depict the history of the auto industry.

The only exception to the "on wheels" rule will be the use of horses, either for riding or for pulling floats.

Related Bicentennial activities will include the selection of a parade queen, a 2-day exhibit of vintage and modern cars at the fairgrounds and a marathon walking race down Woodward Avenue prior to the kickoff of the parade.

Plans are to award trophies and prizes for the best floats, to be selected by a panel of judges.

Groups or individuals interested in getting involved in the county-wide Bicentennial effort can contact Steiner at the Wayne County Bicentennial Committee, 726 City-County Building, Detroit 48226.

CONGRATULATIONS — Adult student leader Lester Shreve accepts congratulations and his diploma from Board of Education Trustee Carl Morris during last year's commencement ceremonies for the adult education program in the Romulus Community Schools. Shreve was one of 75 to graduate from the Romulus program. Adults interested in returning to school can contact the district at 941-1600, ext. 37, for further information.

Von Glahn takes on training

Tom VanGlahn of the Romulus Jaycees took time out from his chores in the Western Wayne Community to visit Hartland, Mich., for a training session for the upcoming Michigan Jaycees fiscal year. VonGlahn (right) visited with Gary Rupprecht, president of the 14,000-member men's civic organization, to learn about key developments in programs designed for the more than 325 Jaycee chapters across the state.

Red Cross kicks off volunteer campaign

Seven days this month, Sept. 21-27, have been set aside as Red Cross Volunteer Recruitment Week. The theme of the campaign this year is "Join Us... Wear the Red Badge of Courage."

Men and women throughout the tri-county will be encouraged to donate their time and skills to serving their community through Red Cross.

As volunteers individuals assist registered nurses in the Blood Center and on mobile units. Transportation service volunteers deliver blood to hospitals, provide transportation service for Red Cross programs, and transport out-patients to doctor's appointments, hospitals, clinics and nutrition sites.

In hospitals volunteers provide patients with the extra care hospital personnel are sometimes too busy to give. At the Armed Forces Entrance and Examining Station (AFEES) volunteers provide inductees with encouragement and inform them how Red Cross can help them and their families while they are away from home.

Other volunteer programs include school health, Disaster Services, nursing, first aid and water safety.

For the first time men and women also will be recruited to serve in the new Red Cross program — Adult Foster Care Services.

Through this program Red Cross will begin working with owners of Adult Foster Care Facilities in helping residents improve skills in physical hygiene and self-grooming.

Red Cross continually is concerned with reaching out to help the community through special projects or established programs. However, only with volunteers providing the necessary manpower and leadership can this be accomplished.

For further information contact the nearest Red Cross unit.
